

Study French in Normandy in June 2009*

Projected Dates: June 8 to July 1, 2009

Approximate Cost: $4625 (includes airfare, language instruction, program fees, host family room and board [two meals per day], hotel in Paris, excursions in Normandy and Paris, ground transportation and airport transfers.

Join fellow Coastal students in June 2009 for a three-week intensive language experience at the University of Caen in Normandy, France followed by four days in Paris. Students will stay with host families while they are in Caen and hotel accommodations will be provided in Paris. This program, open to all levels of French, will increase your writing, reading, speaking, and listening skills. In addition to the time spent in class, excursions will be made to the WWII beaches of Normandy, the medieval cities of Bayeux and Mont Saint Michel. Recreational activities and excursions will be organized by CEFE. This is an excellent opportunity to discover France and French culture and is the BEST way to learn a language.

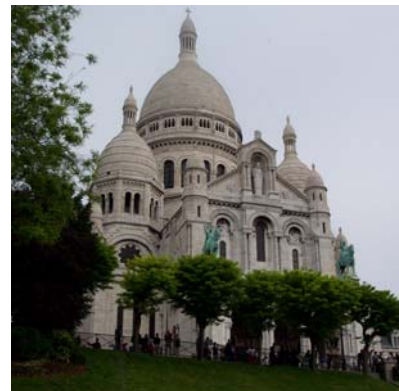

Students will be accompanied by CCU professor Dr. Matthieu Chan Tsin who grew up in Bayeux and received his bachelor's degree from U of Caen.

Classes will be taken on the campus of the University of Caen, in the heart of the city. The campus was designed by American engineers shortly after WWII. All CEFE classes are taught by certified instructors. Classes will be held in the morning only and afternoons will be spent participating in organized activities. Students returning from this program will receive credit for FREN 350. Students who wish to receive additional credit may take the CLEP exam.

Every afternoon, students will participate in excursions, trips and activities. They will explore WWII beaches, medieval cities and castles, and museums. There are recreational activities as well such as: kayaking, soccer and hiking.

The last four days will be spent in Paris where students will discover the city from its Gallo-Roman origins to its modern business district. In addition to visits to the Louvre, the Eiffel Tower and the Champs Elysées, students will have the opportunity to shop in some of Paris' most famous department stores.
