The Spadoni College of Education is pleased to offer the courses required for the Specialist in Educational Leadership (Ed.S.) degree. Designed for professional educators aspiring to hold district office leadership positions and/or school leaders looking for professional development, this program leads to licensure as a school superintendent in South Carolina. Candidates must have a master’s degree in educational leadership, at least three years of teaching experience and pass the Praxis II exam in order to be licensed. The 33 credit-hour program highlights include:

- Complete the program in 1.5 calendar years
- Summer courses that are completely online
- Academic year courses that are offered in hybrid format (blending face-to-face meetings and online activities)
- A 30% tuition discount for in-state students

More details on the program’s scope and sequence, tuition and other details can be found at:
