

MAW Students present 'Comp. 2.0 Symposium'

The graduate students of CCU's Master of Arts in Writing Program (MAW) will host the Comp. 2.0 Symposium to discuss various topics connected to the field of computers and composition on Monday, Dec. 9, from 5 to 7 p.m. in room 257 of the Edwards building. Light refreshments will be served. This event is free and open to faculty and friends of CCU's Department of English.

The MAW students of Denise Paster, coordinator of composition and assistant professor of English, will be presenting the projects resulting from research they conducted in English 690: Special Topics in Composition over the fall semester. The projects will be presented individually and grouped by panels with related topics.

Panel Topics and students presenting are as follows:

- Techno Teaching Tactics
Teresa (Terri) Cox
Amy MacKenzie
Jordan Serviss
- Technology, Tools and Toys
Margaret Fain
Allison Faix
Takelia Hammett
Ikea Haynesworth
- Cultures of Composition/Rhetorics of Representation
Derrick Bracey
Megan Fahey
Kathryn Mann
Lori Sircable

For additional information, contact Denise Paster at 843-349-2612 or dpaster@coastal.edu.

###