Discover: Email and Cite

Once you have opened a full-text article, you may want to email or cite it.

To email, click the envelope icon at the top right and enter your email address in the appropriate field.

You may also want to email yourself a citation of the article and to do so, simply choose “Citation Format” and then choose the appropriate option from the dropdown menu.
To find a citation without emailing it, click the icon that looks like a yellow sheet of paper and scroll to the appropriate field.

Finally, if you would like to copy and paste the URL of the article, click the permalink icon, also on the right hand menu.
This will open the permanent URL at the top of the page, which will always link back to the article. This is preferable to using the URL in your web browser, which will only allow you to access the article for a limited amount of time.
