I. President’s Report – David A. DeCenzo

President David DeCenzo informed the Trustees that several committees have been formed in regards to reductions in costs. One in particular is looking at a cross-section of individuals on campus for cost saving measures. President DeCenzo and the Executive Committee have tasked the University’s Emergency Management Group to start the process for smoothly reopening the institution. They will be working with all parts of the campus and working with Columbia and DHEC in terms of testing and social distancing.

Coastal will be moving forward without a tuition increase. While this does put some added burden on the university, Coastal is making some significant cuts so this will not be put on the backs of students.
Virtual Graduation will be tonight at 6 p.m. Actor Michael Kelly is the commencement speaker and he has a wonderful message for the graduating students. President DeCenzo thanks Special Events, University Marketing and Communication, and several other departments for all of their hard work in getting this put together. The Virtual Honors Convocation was last night and all honors students and the student of the year were recognized. From the comments on social media, it was very well received.

Coastal will continue to work on current plans, while waiting for Columbia’s decision on the continuing resolution. With the passing of this resolution, it will give the University the opportunity to make the human resources changes that are being worked on.

President DeCenzo will send out the University’s announcement about returning in-person for the fall semester immediately following this meeting.
